Merrill receives award

by Nancy Connors

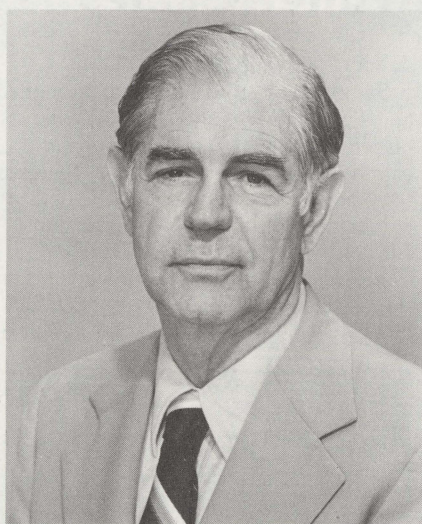

One thousand people attended the annual dinner on Jan. 28 recognizing the 1982 Washingtonians of the Year. Edward C. Merrill, Jr., president of Gallaudet College was honored along with 19 other Washingtonians including Jim Brady, the White House press secretary injured during an attempt on President Reagan's life and his wife, Sarah, Archbishop James Hickey of the Archdiocese of Washington, the Reverend Henry C. Gregory, III, minister of Shiloh Baptist Church, J.C. Hayward of Channel 9 TV News and Harrison Lee, a leader in Washington's Chinatown.

Willard Scott, a 1978 Washingtonian of the Year and the weatherman on NBC-TV's "Today", was the master of ceremonies for the event held at the Sheraton Washington Hotel.

Dr. Merrill spoke briefly when accepting his award. He paused to ask for recognition of the achievements of the students of Gallaudet College and shared a brief lesson in sign language. Clapping his hands together, reversing the hands and motion and spreading his hands across an imaginary land, he

Wilson Grabill dies

Wilson H. Grabill, secretary of the Board of Trustees at Gallaudet, died Jan. 30 at the Regency Nursing Home in Forestville, MD following a long illness.

Grabill was born in Evansville, WI and graduated in 1934 from Gallaudet College. He also earned a master's degree in statistics from American University and received an honorary doctorate from Gallaudet.

Grabill became a civil servant immediately after graduation from Gallaudet. He worked at the U.S. Bureau of the Census in Suitland, MD for 41 years until his retirement in August, 1975. During that same year, the Department of Commerce honored him with its highest award. He had served as chief of the Fertility Statistics Section for 12 years and published two books and many articles on population and fertility. He was an internationally known expert in the field of fertility statistics.

Grabill was an active member of the Alexandria-Potomac Lions Club, most of whose members are deaf, and had served as secretary for three years. Among professional organizations to which he belonged were the Population Association of America and the International Union for the Scientific Study of Population. He served on the Board of Directors of the Population Association of America and the U.S. National Committee of the International Union for the Scientific Study of Population. He was instrumental in the establishment of the National Health-Care Foundation for the Deaf, an organization established to aid previously institutionalized deaf people in adjusting to the outside world.

Grabill was a member of St. Barnabas Mission, a part of St. John's Episcopal Church.

Survivors include his wife, the former Edna Harbin of Clinton, MD; a son, Michael and granddaughter, Kristen Michelle of Edgewater, MD; and a sister, Suzanne Hoelter of Milwaukee, WI.

Private funeral services were held, and a memorial service was held last Sunday, Feb. 6 at St. Barnabas Mission. The family requests that expressions of sympathy be sent to the Alumni House at Gallaudet, the National Health Care Foundation for the Deaf, 1203 Otis St. NE, Washington, D.C. or St. Barnabas Mission to the Deaf, c/o St. John's Episcopal Church, 6701 Wisconsin Ave., Chevy Chase, MD.

Students compete in Winter Games

by Patricia Cinelli

About 150 athletes from 15 countries skied on the sunny slopes of the Italian Alps competing for gold, silver and bronze medals in the X Winter World Games for the Deaf Jan. 16-22.

The small Alpine village of Madonna di Campiglio that nestled between the majestic snow-capped mountains hosted the quadrennial event in which a record number of participants and countries took part. The Soviet Union walked away with the most medals—six gold, seven silver and four bronze. Their athletes swept the cross country competitions winning 14 out of a possible 18 medals. The U.S. had a lone participant in the male cross country events, 31-year-old Ken Buck from Lino Lakes, Minn. Buck competed in the 15 kilometer and 30 kilometer race and had better times than any U.S. competitor in history.

The other 10 members of the U.S. team competed in the alpine events which were held on a World Cup race course. Despite sometime icy and rocky course conditions all U.S. athletes gave a respectable showing on the slopes. No medals were won but much skill and potential was demonstrated by members of the team.

Three Gallaudet students were members of the team. Eighteen-year-old Ken Litherland, 21-year-old Deborah Sampson and 20-year-old Doug Dickinson competed in all four alpine events—slalom, giant slalom,

Budget update

Jan. 24, 1983, Gallaudet received its final OMB Budget Allowance for FY 1984. The allowance is $1,288,000 below the original budget request. For the first time OMB eliminated a portion of the built-in increases (those for Pre-College) as well as reducing the overall budget level. The OMB rationale was that only rubella related increases would be considered.

This means that in FY 1984 a portion of any pay increase will have to be funded by cuts within the budget base. Therefore, the College decided to absorb the remaining OMB cut by reducing the projected pay increases from an average of 7.5% to an average of 6%. This means that the total of all FY 1984 faculty pay increases, staff functional and staff merit increases must be limited to an average of 6%.

The administration approved FY 1984 budget level exceeds the College's authorization for funding by $3,590,000. Therefore Congress will have to pass legislation raising the authorization in order to fund the College at the level requested. Congressional hearings should begin in the next few weeks.

The Glenwood Cemetery

by Michael J. Olson

The Glenwood Cemetery is located in the northeast section of the District of Columbia near North Capitol Street. The entrance to the cemetery is on 2219 Lincoln Road NE, near Trinity College and a few miles from Gallaudet.

The Glenwood Cemetery was chartered by an Act of Congress on July 27, 1854. At that time it was considered far out in the country because the northern limit of the city was called Boundary Street, now Florida Avenue. The cemetery was dedicated in August, 1854. The location is beautiful with rolling hills, a number of large old oak trees scattered around, and gently winding roads. The cemetery consists of approximately 50 acres. It is one of the oldest cemeteries in Washington.

Gallaudet College purchased 12 burial plots on May 3, 1864 at five dollars per plot or $60 for 12 plots. The plots are located on Lot No. 77, Section B. Five students of the Columbia Institution (now Gallaudet College) are buried there. The first to be buried there was a girl named Ann W. Trumbell. No information is available on her. Two boys named James Cross, Jr., age 25, from Pennsylvania, and Malachi Hollowell, age 19, from Illinois, were buried there at the same time because they were drowned while swimming in the river. On the morning of June 1, 1867, when a group of boys from the Columbia Institution went swimming in the East Branch of the Potomac River at the end of the Pennsylvania Avenue, the accident happened. While Cross was swimming, he was seized with cramps which caused him to drown. Hollowell also drowned, and his body was found the next day. They were buried at the Glenwood cemetery on June 3. At that time, Cross and Hollowell were in the sophomore and preparatory classes, respectively.

A young girl, Virginia A. Patterson, daughter of a soldier in the United States Army, died of pneumonia on March 14, 1871. She had been deserted by her parents, and her only home was the Columbia Institution. She attended the Primary Department, now the Kendall School. And finally, in 1917, the last of the five students, Edward Clark, was buried there. He was 59 years old and had been a pupil in Kendall School from 1867 to 1877. There are no markers on the plots on these five students in the Glenwood Cemetery. Gallaudet still owns the remaining plots.

Some prominent citizens of Washington are also buried in the cemetery. Alexander Gardner, a famous Civil War photographer who worked with another famous photographer, Mathew Brady, is buried there. Also buried there is Amos Kendall, the prominent philanthropist who founded Columbia Institution for the Deaf and Dumb. His grave marker is difficult to miss: it is more than 10 feet tall.

Sampson demonstrated her strength and skill in the first two events. She placed 14th in the giant slalom and eighth in the slalom. However, Sampson showed her endurance and dedication during the final two competitions. After completing the slalom runs Sampson slipped on the ice leaving the slopes. Her skis fell on her hand fracturing two fingers. But this did not stop her from skiing the downhill and super giant slalom race. She placed ninth and 15th, respectively.

Litherland was 24th and Dickinson placed 46th out of 60 skiers in the giant slalom competition. In the slalom event Litherland placed 13th and Dickinson, 27th. Downhill Litherland placed 28th and Dickinson 40th and in the super giant slalom Litherland placed 20th and Dickinson 50th.

The U.S. had no athletes competing in the speed skating events.

Before the Games officially began with Opening Ceremonies Jan. 16, delegates to the 27th Congress of the CISS (International Committee of Sports for the Deaf) discussed and voted on issues concerning future games and their participants. The meeting was chaired by Jerald Jordan, director of Admissions and Records at Gallaudet and president of the CISS. Jordan was reelected to his fourth term as CISS president. By a vote of 35 to 19 with four abstaining New Zealand was voted over Australia as the location for the 1989 Summer World Games. Plans for the 1985 Summer Games in Los Angeles were presented by the chairman of the organizing committee Herb Schreiber ('46). Most delegates could not stop laughing when Schreiber, dressed in a green velour v-neck sweater with a large '85 Games emblem and corduroy knickers promised the delegates that it would not rain in L.A. July 10-20, 1985.

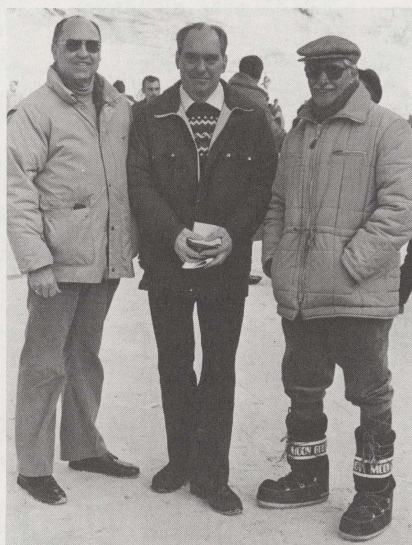

A sensitive and heated issue that was brought before the 27th Congress was the question of South Africa's participation in the '85 Games. After much discussion and a vote 35 to 19 with four abstaining it was decided that South Africa could not send athletes to the '85 Games but that it could participate in competitions with "friendly nations" on an individual basis.

Delegates also voted to require athletes to remove their hearing aids before competing in any events.

When the competitions ended in Madonna and closing ceremonies were completed the American delegation headed by Art Kruger ('33), chairman emeritus, relaxed in Venice and Milan for three days. This was Kruger's last official trip with the team. After 14 years as team director and 16 years as chairman, Kruger stepped down as a member of the American Athletic Association of the Deaf/World Games Committee. Bill Simpson ('51), principal of vocational education at the North Carolina School for the Deaf, is the newly-elected chairman.

Above, Gallaudet Media Relations Associate Patricia Cinelli, junior Deborah Sampson and 14-year-old Jeffrey Mosher of St. Mary's School in Buffalo, NY stand in the square after opening ceremonies. SEHS submits proposals to Dept. of Education

Last December, On the Green published as the highlight in this section the announcement of the Training Personnel for the Education of the Handicapped Program of the U.S. Department of Education.

As a follow-up to this announcement, Thomas Landers, dean of the School of Education and Human Services, coordinated the development and submission of the three following proposals to meet the Jan. 21 deadline:

- "The Training of Pre-service Personnel to Work With Handicapped (Deaf and Hearing Impaired) Youth and Children in Recreation and Leisure Services." This proposed project, having a budget of $39,118, would involve the development of a new curriculum that would lead to a BS degree in Recreation. This course of study would have three primary goals—to prepare students to plan recreational programs for the Gallaudet campus, to prepare hearing impaired recreation majors for professional careers in special education settings and the recreation leisure field, and to increase the students' awareness of the value of leisure in their own lives.

- "Gallaudet Project for Training Teachers for the Hearing Impaired and Multihandicapped Hearing Impaired and Supervisors of Special Education." This project, requesting $137,447, proposes the development of a two-year graduate program that would focus on pre-service preparation of highly qualified teachers for hearing impaired and multihandicapped hearing impaired children. The second activity of this project is the program in Special Education Supervision, which would be an educational program for aspiring and practicing instructional supervisors in special education and the education of the hearing impaired.

- "Kendall Green Supervisory Training Institute." This project, amounting to $43,597, proposes an intensive six-week training program for experienced special education supervisors as offered through SEHS and coordinated by Francis Duffy.

President's Office Notes

Board of Fellows makes recommendations

The Board of Fellows of Gallaudet College met in November of 1982 to address the question: "How Can Gallaudet College Better Prepare Students to Function in a Hearing Environment on the Job and Socially?"

In the course of their study, the Fellows reviewed communication in the Pre-College and College programs, observed in classrooms, met with faculty and staff, visited off-campus programs and questioned students about their experiences.

The Fellows concluded that the College is doing a fine job in preparing its students to function effectively outside of Gallaudet College, but they identified areas in which improvement might be made and gave specific recommendations.

At its January Board meeting, the Trustees accepted the report of the Board of Fellows and asked the administration of the College to develop a plan that would respond to the several recommendations in the report. These recommendations follow:

The communication policies at the Pre-College and the College levels should be monitored continuously by the administration to ensure that they are, in fact, carried out.

Reading and writing skills in the English language should be developed to the fullest extent possible in all students.

For the purposes of qualitative analysis, further research should be employed to:

- assess Pre-College students' achievements and compare their achievements with that of deaf students at other schools for the deaf; and
- assess progress and achievement of all students on Kendall Green as they move through college and careers.

All Kendall Green instructional programs should include curricular components regarding communication skills for hearing impaired children and youth in a hearing world: speechreading, speech, telephone communication, hearing aid maintenance and psychology of deafness.

A systematic program should be developed for ensuring that KDES, MSSD and Gallaudet students are kept current on the appropriate use of interpreters, including an appreciation of interpreter rights and obligations, client rights and obligations and other pertinent information.

Gallaudet College should establish a Blue Ribbon Task Force to address the issues of language acquisition: utilizing the best, most incisive and most experienced representatives of deaf adults, psychology, linguistics, semantics, deaf education, audiology and epistemology, as well as other disciplines and constituencies. By reducing this perplexing subject to its most basic salient elements, analyzing them and prescribing a set of principles, axioms, corollaries and treatments, the profession of education of deaf people will be able to provide more effective and sophisticated services to the deaf student, the focal point of that profession.

Gallaudet College should assess the validity of this concern and determine if there is peer pressure to an extent that warrants the attention of the faculty and administration and/or the Board of Fellows.

MSSD and KDES should continue to refine their existing parent education programs, and the College should consider expanding its efforts in this area.

Gallaudet should explore a model community outreach program, with the objective of creating a method that could also be used in other communities to promote community awareness and sensitivity that will help both parents and schools to reinforce their efforts to facilitate job placements and internships which constitute the major vehicles for integrating young hearing impaired adults into the hearing community.

Wisher receives dance award

Peter Wisher, former director of the Gallaudet Dancers for 23 years and professor of Physical Education and Athletics at Gallaudet for 26 years, has been chosen as the National Dance Association Heritage Honoree for 1983.

The Heritage Award of the National Dance Association (NDA) is the highest award presented by the Association, which is a part of the American Alliance for Health, Physical Education, Recreation and Dance (AAHPERD).

Wisher will receive the honor at the annual Dance Heritage luncheon to be held at the Hyatt Regency Hotel in Minneapolis, MD on April 9, as part of the AAHPERD convention.

Wisher has pioneered dance for deaf students at Gallaudet and has helped the Gallaudet Dancers gain both national and international recognition.

He has been invited to bring a couple of the Gallaudet Dancers with him to perform at the convention. He also says this will be the first time in his 30 years as a member of the NDA that interpreters will be present at a meeting.

Search Committee continues to meet

To the Campus Community:

The Presidential Search Committee met the week of Jan. 20 in D.C. All members attended with the exception of Mrs. Katie Brown. Mrs. Brown, also a member of the Gallaudet Board of Trustees, recently lost her husband and was unable to come. Condolence was sent to the Brown family on behalf of the Committee and the College.

Interviews have been scheduled for selected candidates, and the Committee has started the interview process. Upon completion of this phase of the search, selected candidates will be invited to visit the Gallaudet campus.

The PSC will continue to inform the College community of its progress.

Harslem announces resignation next fall

A statement from President Edward C. Merrill, Jr.:

Ten years ago, Ms. Barbara Harslem came to Gallaudet College to be the assistant to the president. She brought with her excellent experience as a program and budget analyst both in the then Department of Health, Education and Welfare and the Office of Management and Budget. She very rapidly established good relationships with program and budget personnel in the Office of the Secretary of HEW and in OMB. She then began to organize and to improve contacts with members of Congress and their professional staff members.

Ms. Harslem became an extremely effective member of the Central Administration Team which responded to very challenging goals of growth and development established for the College during the 1970s. These were times of expansion of programs and services, renewal and expansion of the physical plant of the College, and the beginnings of significant outreach to deaf people beyond Kendall Green.

She initiated the institutional advancement program at Gallaudet College in concept, design and practice, and became vice president for Institutional Advancement in the spring of 1981. This program permitted the critical functions of alumni and public relations, planning, development, information distribution, congressional liaison, special events and private support to work together effectively in building a very sound support base for the College, MSSD and KDES.

Her resignation has been accepted with regret and with all good wishes for her continued success as she pursues other interests. She has assured me that she will join me in her continued devotion to and support of Gallaudet College. Her resignation will take effect between four and six weeks after Sept. 30, 1983 to provide a period of transition for the new president.

New Council members chosen

A fairly large turnout of staff employees—43% of those eligible to vote—chose nine staff representatives to serve on the College Council for the next two years in an election held Jan. 27.

The new staff representatives and their alternates (in parentheses) are:

Academic Affairs: non-exempt—Kathy Swanson (Diana Webb); exempt—Holly Goodling (Tom Harrington).

Business Affairs: non-exempt—Gary Miller (Ken Massie); exempt—Dan Bryant (Malcolm Grossinger).

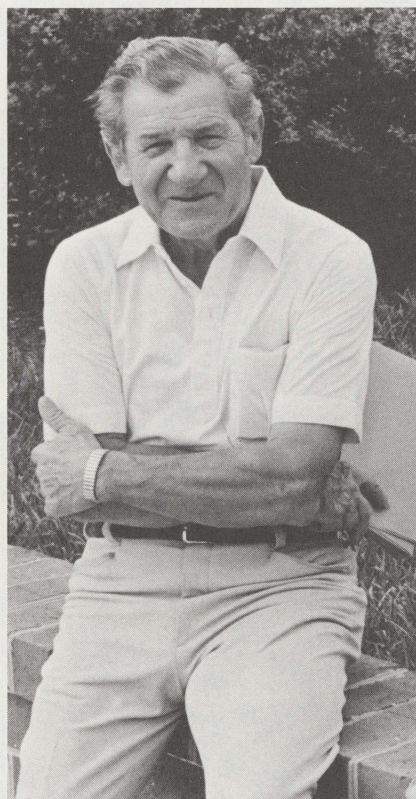

Pre-College: non-exempt—Barbara Lynch (Vivian Smith); exempt—Peter Goodman (Peter Hobbs).

Public Services: Leslie Proctor (Tanya Morris).

Research: Kathleen Berault (Vicki Patterson).

Institutional Advancement/Pres. Office: Vickie Walter (Carole Cangiano).

Three hundred and sixty-three persons voted in the election. Faculty representatives to the College Council will be elected soon by the Collegiate and Pre-College faculties.

Gallaudet College is an equal opportunity employer-education institution. Programs and services offered by Gallaudet College received substantial financial support from the Department of Education.

AAUW branch established here

A branch of the American Association of University Women (AAUW) is being established at Gallaudet, and membership is still open to any woman on campus who has a college degree.

During two meetings held on Jan. 26, at which representatives of AAUW were present to discuss the organization and answer questions, more than 60 women expressed interest in joining the organization. It is expected that by the end of February, the bylaws for the Gallaudet branch will be developed and the officers will be elected.

Paula Ottinger of the Department of Sign Communication, who has spearheaded the effort to organize an AAUW chapter on campus, spoke of some of the possible activities at Gallaudet that could be coordinated through the new AAUW chapter. Suggestions from interested persons include looking into establishing a day care center on campus; offering programs on such topics as financial management, preparation for retirement and women's safety; establishing a task force to look at the status of women on campus; and providing a social network.

The new organization will also have a commitment to providing programming to serve all women on campus, whether or not they are AAUW members, including undergraduate women. "We can serve as a source of support for the College and as a way to enrich support for the women here," said Ottinger. AAUW also provides speakers on various topics through its Speakers Bureau.

Originally established in 1882, this largest and oldest national women's organization now has more than 200,000 members in 1900 branches, including branches in about 65 other countries.

At the Jan. 26 meeting Alice Cole, AAUW D.C. State president; Eddy Mae Beards, D.C. vice president for membership and Jean Colburn, discussed some of the benefits of belonging to the organization. AAUW has an advocacy fund which provides financial assistance for women who need help in filing legal briefs. Additional help is available through an educational foundation, which provides fellowships and recognition for women of achievement. Lobbying groups from Maryland, D.C. and Virginia go once a week to Capitol Hill to lobby, and the first priority of the group is passage of the Equal Rights Amendment. At the national meeting in San Francisco this year, the group will be voting on two issues: women networking, and peace and disarmament. Although AAUW is not a political organization, it does take a stand on some issues on the national level, said Cole.

In addition to specific activities that will be planned by the Gallaudet branch of AAUW, membership in the organization offers other benefits, including receipt of Graduate Woman magazine six times a year, participation in branch programs, access to hospitalization, life insurance and annuity plans and discounts on books or car rentals through Graduate Women.

Women who would like to join the AAUW branch at Gallaudet can send membership dues of $25 to Paula Ottinger, MTB 212. For more information, contact Ottinger at x5631, Judy Harkins at x5030 or Cathy McCormick Loerch at x5631.

made the sign for "peace" and asked everyone to join him. J. C. Hayward subsequently ended her remarks with the same sign borrowed from Merrill.

Approximately 60 Gallaudet faculty, staff and alumni and other friends of the College attended the dinner. "This is the first time in the 12-year history of the event that a sign language interpreter was a part of the evening," commented Mervin D. Garretson, special assistant to the president for advocacy. Alan Crammatte, current holder of the Powrie V. Doctor Chair of Deaf Studies, recalled that when Merrill first appeared on the scene there were often times, even on the campus of Gallaudet, when deaf people were ignored and isolated from conversations or events occurring around them. He felt that Merrill had made a real contribution to improvement in that area and that hearing impaired people were making progress with public awareness and understanding of deafness.

Each year the editors of The Washingtonian magazine select individuals, such as Merrill, who have made outstanding contributions to the community. The reception and dinner are sponsored by the Downtown Jaycees to honor the award recipients. During the evening, area citizens have an opportunity to share pride in their community and in those people who help improve the quality of life for all of us. The Downtown Jaycees use the profits from the dinner to finance their participation in the support of the Special Olympics, the Cherry Blossom Festival parade and other activities.

A representative from the office of Washington's Mayor Marion Barry spoke of the contributions of each person in making Washington, D.C. a better place to live. Joe Theismann, a 1980 Washingtonian of the Year, apologized for his absence but was certain that everyone would understand about the job he had to do in California.
