Students from the School of Preparatory Studies say goodbye for the summer following the last day of classes earlier this month at the Northwest Campus. Classes will resume for the fall semester in August.

Festival brings participants to campus

Some 700 participants in the National Very Special Arts Festival (VSAF) will begin arriving on campus this week as the National Committee, Arts with the Handicapped (NCAH) conducts the Festival in Washington, D.C. May 23-26.

Gallaudet will host more than 700 disabled children and youth from all 50 states and more than 60 countries during the Festival, which commemorates the tenth anniversary of the NCAH. The event is a celebration of artistic works by disabled and non-disabled children and youth.

Between 700 and 1,000 celebrants are expected to come to Washington, D.C. to share their accomplishments in the visual and performing arts. The Festival will feature four days of performances, arts exhibits and workshops at the Kennedy Center.

In addition to serving as the host site, Gallaudet will be represented at the Festival itself. The Gallaudet Dancers will perform and conduct a workshop for Festival participants. The group will perform at both an international luncheon/reception at noon on Wednesday, May 23 at the Organization of American States and at a White House reception at 2:30 p.m. Thursday, May 24.

Two KDES students, Brian Morris and Raychelle Harris, are representing the District of Columbia at the Festival. MSSD students will perform at the 10:30 a.m. press conference at the John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts on Wednesday, May 23 and at a special performance of "Godspell" at MSSD on Friday, May 25.

A play written by MSSD junior Terylene Theriot will be produced and performed by professional actors at the Kennedy Center on Friday, May 25. Victoria Brown Clayman, instructor in the Theatre Arts Department, will direct the play. Theriot won a national competition in playwrighting for her one-act script, "Imagine," a story of a young deaf girl who convinces a jaded old man that life is worth living.

The Festival will kick-off Wednesday morning with a press conference. At that time, both national and international Festival participants will be registering on campus, where they will be housed at Benson, Clerc, Carlin and Cogswell halls.

Campus tours are scheduled for Festival coordinators and guests and district school representatives from 1 to 3 p.m. Wednesday. International dignitaries will tour campus from 4 to 6 p.m. on Thursday.

Breakfast each morning and dinner each evening will be served in three shifts in the campus Dining Hall.

Gallaudet Annual Business Campaign exceeds its goal

The 1983 Gallaudet Annual Business Campaign closed as a success this year and has exceeded its goal of $225,000. Chaired by Dr. Vincent Reed, vice president of Communications at the Washington Post, the Campaign collected $263,821: cash gifts of $159,081 and a donation of office equipment valued at $104,740 from the local office of Minnesota, Mining and Manufacturing Company.

The money, collected from Washington area businesses, will be used for equipping and operating the Northwest Campus, expanding Gallaudet's academic programs and student support services, including audiology, and strengthening the College's program of student financial aid.

This is the second year the campaign has been in existence. Last year, chaired by Kenneth Wells Parkinson of Jackson and Campbell, P.C., the Campaign raised more than $180,000 from about 100 donors in the Washington area. The funds raised in 1982 have been used to support Northwest Campus renovation.

During the campaign this past year, Reed and 11 other volunteers asked businesses for their financial support to aid the College in maintaining its excellence in education, research and public service programs. "Few communities are as lucky to have access to the most up-to-date programs and services for hearing impaired people and their families," Reed said.

The Annual Business Campaign is a volunteer-managed campaign supported by Gallaudet's Office of Development staff. Susan Dankoff Menick is acting manager of that office. The Executive Committee members set the goal, plan the campaign and personally solicit gifts. Members can expect to attend one of two breakfast meetings to solicit five to 10 businesses personally and possibly recruit one other Executive Committee member.

Also serving with Reed on the campaign was: Avery C. Faulkner, president of Faulkner Design, Inc.; Stephen D. Harlan, managing partner with Peat, Marwick & Mitchell; Allen R. Lloyd, president of A.L. Hutton, Inc.; Andrew M. Ockershausen, executive vice president with WMAL, Inc.; Tilmor O'Bryant, deputy chief of police, District of Columbia, (retired); J.A. Parker, president of Jay Parker & Assoc.; Kenneth W. Parkinson; Joseph H. Riley, chairman, National Savings & Trust; Charles Schwartz of Charles Schwartz, Inc.; W. Reid Thompson, chairman and president, Potomac Electric & Power Company and Robert W. Wening, Jr., partner with Mills, Clagett & Wening.

Pensacola reporter winner of first journalism award

A reporter from Pensacola, FL, has been selected as the winner of the first Gallaudet Journalism Award, initiated this year by Gallaudet College and the Gallaudet College Alumni Association.

Teresa Hoffman Greenley was awarded top honors for a series entitled, "A Sign of Independence." The series appeared for five days in the Pensacola News, a Gannett publication. Accompanied by photographer Charlie Steed, Greenley spent 10 months learning sign language and meeting deaf people in the Pensacola area.

Recognition dinner honors campus corps of volunteers

by Mike Kaika

"Thank Goodness for Volunteers" was the theme of the Gallaudet College Volunteer Recognition Dinner held May 8 in "Ole Jim." The College paid tribute to the 41 dedicated volunteers who generously give their time in performing a host of services for the College and Pre-College throughout the year.

Don Pettingill, who dubbed himself, "the fastest tongue in the east," served as Master of Ceremonies for the evening.

Applications invited

Applications are being invited for new projects under the Services for Deaf-Blind Children and Youth Program, the U.S. Department of Education announced recently. Applications are due on or before July 2.

This program supports projects that provide special education and related services to deaf-blind children and youth, assistance to state educational agencies in making available programs to facilitate the transition of these youth from education to employment and disseminate materials and information concerning effective practices in working with deaf-blind children and youth.

The Department plans to award at least nine grants. It is estimated that approximately $10.1 million will be available for support of projects under this program for fiscal year 1984. About $8.1 million of that amount is budgeted for services programs. The remainder of the funds are allocated among technical assistance, services to youth and data analysis and dissemination.

For further information, please contact the Office of Sponsored Research. Application forms and program information packages may be obtained by contacting Charles W. Freeman, the Special Needs Section, Office of Special Education, Department of Education, 400 Maryland Avenue, SW, (Switzer Bldg., Room 4615), Washington, DC 20202, 732-1165.

dance will be held from 7 to 10 p.m. at the Field House. Room 116 of the Field House will be used as a check-in room for children's belongings. The small classroom at the end of the hallway will serve as the first aid/rest area and will contain two cots and several chairs. The large classroom will serve as a reception area for VIPs and international guests attending the dance.

Before the dance begins, the vinyl floor covering the Field House floor from graduation will be examined for safety and accessibility to wheelchairs. Should the covering be removed, all persons attending the dance will be required to store their shoes in the check room before entering the gym.

On Friday, the MSSD production of "Godspell" will be performed at the MSSD auditorium. The performance will begin at 8 p.m.

A closing ceremony will be held Saturday, May 26 at Elstad Auditorium. The ceremony will be held from 9 to 10:00 a.m. and will feature performances by three Festival participants and the Washington, D.C. Police Department Band. Certificates will also be presented at this time.

The Mayor's Special Events Task Force has set up a command post at Gallaudet during the Arts Festival. The Command Post will operate 24 hours a day and will handle any emergency situations that may arise among the Festival participants housed on campus. The phone number for the Command Post is x5775.

Until Friday, May 25 at 5 p.m., all medical emergencies involving Festival participants will be handled by staffers at the Gallaudet Infirmary. After that time, emergency situations will be handled through the Communications Center by medical personnel available through the city's Commission on Public Health.

For further information about the Very Special Arts Festival, contact the Festival campus office, 409 Benson, at x5699.

Gallaudet College is an equal opportunity employer-education institution. Programs and services offered by Gallaudet College receive substantial financial support from the Department of Education.

SummerFest '84, the first of what is hoped will become an annual event, was held May 8 at the Ely Center. Sponsored by the Office of Student Affairs and the Student Union Office, SummerFest provided students and other members of the campus community information and ideas on things to do, places to visit and activities to plan during the summer months. A cook-out was held on the Ely Center patio and entertainment provided from noon to 1 p.m. An estimated 500 students and faculty and staff members attended SummerFest.

Retirement focus of program offering

The Personnel Office is sponsoring a three-part seminar/dinner program entitled "Financial Aspects of Retirement Planning." Eligible employees, those 50 and older, and their spouses are invited to attend.

The series began May 16 with a presentation by David S. Doderio, a certified financial planner and president of Doderio & Associated, an investment planning firm. He discussed financial planning for retirement.

The second session will be held Wednesday, May 23 at 5:15 p.m. in the Yellow Room of the College Dining Facility. Joyce White, a Title II claims representative, Social Security Administration, will discuss social security benefits.

The third session will be held Wednesday, May 30 in the Red Room of the College Dining Facility. Bradford Staneson, personnel management specialist, Office of the Secretary, Department of Health and Human Services, will discuss the Civil Service Retirement System.

A buffet dinner beginning at 5:15 p.m. will be served at each seminar. The presentation will be given at 6 p.m. and will be followed by a general discussion.

The dinner and seminar series is being offered as a service of the Personnel Office. There is no charge to participants.

Please telephone Renovia Forde or Cassie Wilson at x5511 to make reservations for either or both of the sessions. Reservations for the May 23 session must be made by May 22, and by May 29 for the May 30 session.

KDES science fair set

Students from KDES will present their annual science fair May 23 and 24 at the KDES mall. This is the first school-wide science fair at KDES and the campus community is invited to attend both days from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

The science fair will also feature several exhibits from outside agencies that will provide "hands-on" science-related exploration.

Teacher of Year addresses education honorary society

Jay Sommer, National Teacher of the Year and a member of the President's Commission on Excellence in Education, was the featured speaker at the April 23 meeting of the campus chapter of Kappa Delta Pi Honorary Society in Education.

Referring to his work as a member of the Commission which produced the national report on American education, "A Nation At Risk," Sommer distinguished between the written and unwritten recommendations. As the only teacher serving on the Commission, he argued unsuccessfully against the recommendation that the school day be lengthened in American schools, preferring instead to find better ways of using the in-school time that children and teachers already have. He pointed out that the problems of American schools are largely due to being asked to do everything that society seems unable to do (including integrating diverse groups, teaching sex education and teaching drug education).

Sommer called for a curricular emphasis in which writing of English would be a core, along with teaching the love of reading and the "chaos as well as the chronology" of history. The social studies, he said, should include ways to help children remember the worst as well as the best of the past. We should especially impart to children, he said, that learning is not necessarily all "fun."

Jack Gannon congratulates volunteer David Peikoff following the announcement that a David Peikoff Volunteer Award has been established.

Happy Hour cancelled

Because of the Memorial Day holiday weekend, there will be no Happy Hour at "Ole Jim" on Friday, May 25. Happy Hour will resume on Thursday, May 31 from 4 to 7 p.m.

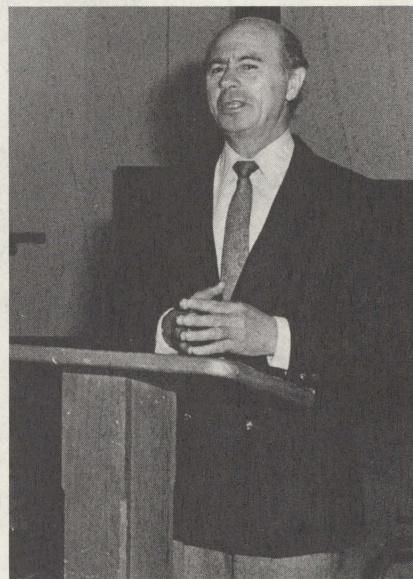

Pictured second from left, Loret Ruppe, director of the Peace Corps, was presented a letter of appreciation from Interim President Jerry Lee May 8 for the Peace Corps' work with disabled volunteers. Gallaudet has a number of returned Peace Corps volunteers on its staff and faculty.

As a child growing up in Czechoslovakia, Sommer was forced to drop out of school at the age of 10 to help support his brothers and sisters. During World War II, he spent two and one half years in a concentration camp, from which he said he was "liberated" by the Russian army in which he had to serve for seven months.

Coming to the United States with only a fourth grade education at the age of 21, he developed an immediate love for America because it gave him the chance to get a full education. He was allowed to work simultaneously on a high school diploma and a bachelor of arts degree at Brooklyn College by going to school five nights per week while working full time.

He said that it was then that he decided to become a teacher because of his feeling of indebtedness to America—to "repay" America for what it had given him. He is now a teacher of five foreign languages at New Rochelle High School in New York. He is on leave this year for speaking engagements throughout the nation.

Speaking to the audience of undergraduate and graduate students in education and Education faculty, he said, "Teaching is a glorious way of thanking America. I learn more from children than I have taught them. There can be no greater pleasure in life than to transmit what you know to another person."

Jay Sommer

He concluded his remarks with a list of four priorities for American education: (1) establish better professional relationships within the education "family" (teachers and principals); (2) motivate children to learn through love and support; (3) tell children they need to know about the now 23 national reports on American education; and (4) teaching professionals need to understand the importance of making a "sacrifice—walking the extra mile" in perpetuating American democracy.

Dinner recognizes work of volunteers

"A lot of people are not aware of it, but our volunteers put in about 800 hours a month," said Lupe Bryant, who is responsible for the development of the Volunteer Program and who also coordinated the recognition dinner. "We only ask that each volunteer put in four hours a week but there are some who contribute considerably more time," Bryant noted.

After dinner, Special Recognition Awards were presented to two volunteers. Tom Mayes, vice president for Public Services, presented an award to Helena Schmitt, a 1971 graduate of Gallaudet, who spent 400 hours over a five-month period indexing the Directory of Services for the Hearing Impaired.

Jack Gannon, director of the Office of Alumni and Public Relations, presented a Special Recognition Award and a leatherbound book, "History of the College for the Deaf, 1857-1907" by Edward Miner Gallaudet, to David Peikoff for his many years of service to Gallaudet.

It was announced that in further recognition of Peikoff, the College has established the David Peikoff Volunteer of the Year Award to be awarded to a Gallaudet graduate volunteer. The first recipient of this award was May Curtis. Interim President Jerry Lee presented the award to Curtis, a volunteer in the Development Office. That office estimates that Curtis gives over $10,000 a year worth of time.

Lee presented Isadore (Izzy) Zisman with the Community Volunteer of the Year Award. He works for the National Information Center on Deafness (NICD). In that capacity, he responds to about 20 letters a week from people who request information from the NICD.

A group of undergraduate and graduate students also volunteer on campus. Jack Gannon and Al Couthen, assistant principal at KDES, presented Peter Yurkowski, a first year graduate student who worked at KDES this past year, with the Wallace D. Edington Student Volunteer Award.

Two volunteers received Special Recognition Awards for their many years of service to the College. Georgette Fleishman and Marguerite Dempsey have been volunteers for six and seven years in the Office of Alumni and Public Relations and the Visitors Center respectively.

The Volunteer Program has grown significantly since it was initiated in July 1981. At that time, the College had about 10 volunteers. This year campus volunteers number 41 plus 10 student volunteers.

Any campus volunteers who have not registered through the Volunteer Program Office should contact Lupe Bryant at x5109 (voice and TDD).

Journalism award winner announced

Jurors for the award noted that the series reflects the commitment of both Greenley and her paper to an accurate portrayal of the lives of deaf people in America.

The Gallaudet Journalism Award was established to recognize excellence in reporting and writing on the subject of deafness.

The jury selected "A Sign of Independence" from a group of more than 80 articles submitted by magazines, newspapers and news services from across the country.

Given the quality and variety of entries this year, the jury voted to recognize two additional entries with awards of honorable mention. LIFE Magazine reporter and writer Anne Fadiman was recognized for her feature article, "Love in a Silent World." Jurors noted that Fadiman's personal story of two students at Gallaudet drew the reader immediately into their lives and was very well written.

Gill Chamblin, now director of Public Relations with Howard County General Hospital, was also awarded honorable mention for her article, "World of the Deaf," which appeared in the Columbia Filer, a weekly newspaper in Columbia, MD. The jury considered Chamblin's work a first-rate depth piece from a weekly paper. It was praised for its treatment of social issues involved with deafness.

Greenley was the guest of Gallaudet College at the 120th Commencement Exercises and received her award at the President's Luncheon.

Chess championship scheduled at Ely

Even signs will be silent at the Ely Center when the National Association of the Deaf Committee on Silent Chess hosts the VIIIth World Individual Chess Championship on campus.

Opening ceremonies and the first round of play begin May 28. The tournament will feature players from 10 countries. Russell Chauvenet of Silver Spring, MD, will represent the United States in the tournament, which is scheduled to play 11 rounds of championship chess spanning 13 days.

Play will be broken by several special events. Delegates to the International Committee on Silent Chess will meet for an all-day session June 3 at the Ely Center. Tours of the Washington, D.C. area have also been scheduled.

Closing ceremonies and a banquet have been arranged for June 9.

All tournament play will take place in the Ely Multipurpose Room. The committee welcomes spectators but requests that they stay "outside the roped-off area and should not sign or smoke in this room to avoid disturbing the players."

Further information on the tournament can be obtained at the tournament registration desk set up at the Ely Center beginning May 28.

Gallaudet to host Special Olympics

The Sixteenth Annual District of Columbia Special Olympics Spring Games will be held on the campus of Gallaudet College June 1 and 2.

Approximately 700 Special Olympians from the Washington, D.C. area will be competing in traditional Olympic events such as track and field, soccer, swimming and gymnastics.

Registration for the athletes will begin at 9 a.m. Friday, June 1. The official opening ceremonies will be held that evening.

Games and competition will continue all day Saturday, with the closing ceremony of the annual games taking place at 5 p.m. June 2.

Fire at College Hall does little damage

No injuries and minimal damage occurred from a fire that destroyed a few pieces of wood in the ceiling of the roof of College Hall May 9. College Hall was evacuated Wednesday afternoon but according to Ed Glenn, a supervisor in the Department of Safety and Security, the fire was put out before the Washington, D.C. Fire Department arrived on campus.

The cause of the fire is not yet known but Glenn said that workers were welding on another side of the roof. The work could have caused a spark to fly, igniting the ceiling, Glenn said.
