Educators bestow 2 honors on new CEASD president

When Robert Davila, vice president for Pre-College Programs, assumed the presidency of the Conference of Educational Administrators Serving the Deaf (CEASD) in July, he became the first person—deaf or hearing—to have held the top elected post of all three professional organizations for educators of the deaf.

Those organizations are: CEASD, the Convention of American Instructors of the Deaf and the Council on Education of the Deaf.

Dr. Davila was also recently selected as Syracuse (N.Y.) University's (SU) School of Education Honored Alumnus for 1986. He was honored during SU's convocation ceremony in May.

In addition, Dr. Davila was named "member of honor" in June by the Spanish Association of Educators of the Deaf and Language Disorders.

Dr. Davila, one of eight children, worked in the fields as a migrant farm worker with his family prior to becoming deaf. Deafened at the age of 8 after a bout with spinal meningitis, he was enrolled at the California School for the Deaf in Berkeley.

Dr. Davila entered Gallaudet at the age of 15 and earned a bachelor of arts degree in education in 1953 at the age of 20. He received a master of science degree in special education from Hunter College in New York and a PhD in educational technology from SU in 1972. He was the first deaf person to receive a doctorate from Syracuse.

Dr. Davila, of Mexican descent, speaks fluent Spanish and has a reading knowledge of Italian and Portuguese. He has used his abilities to promote programs for the deaf in foreign countries as well as in the U.S.

Entering students' mean SAT scores increase more than one full grade level

New students entering Gallaudet this fall are showing higher mean test scores on the Stanford Achievement Test (SAT), according to preliminary data from the Admissions Office.

Freshmen SAT mean scores are at about a 9.9 grade level in reading comprehension, in the 97th percentile for hearing impaired 18-year-olds, compared with an 8.5 grade level for freshmen in 1985, and 7.5 in 1984.

According to Myra Per-Lee, director of the Admissions Office, "The average reading scores of our freshmen may be even higher than those of hearing students entering most colleges and universities, which report between 30 and 40 percent of entering freshmen reading below a 7th grade level."

President Jerry C. Lee said, "This encouraging news reflects some of the positive results of our new admission policy and the intensive efforts of key people in the Enrollment Management Office."

Further, said Dr. Lee, "The higher reading scores may also be partly attributable to the increase of captioned television programs and greater use of telecommunication devices, both of which have increased the accessibility of English to deaf persons."

"Freshmen mean mathematics scores also showed a jump, averaging a 12.8 grade equivalent, compared with 11.5 last year and 10.8 in 1984."

Recent Admissions Office figures indicate that a total of 525 new undergraduates are expected to register this week, with 270 freshmen, 220 preparatory students, 17 associate of arts students in interpreter training, and 12 full-time non-degree students.

It is expected that a total of 120 new graduate students will be enrolled this week, an increase of about 25 percent over last year's fall class of 98.

About 23 percent of the new freshmen and prep students are transfers from other colleges, compared with 24 percent in 1985. Three hearing transfer students will enroll this week with majors in psychology, social work and sign communication. Three hearing students, currently enrolled in other colleges, will be special visiting students this year.

Approximately 14 percent of new freshmen and prep students are foreign, compared with 10 percent last year. The majority of students enrolled from the United States are from the East, but the percentage of students from the South Central and Western states has increased slightly over last year.

Admissions Office records show that about 36 percent of the freshmen and prep students last attended a mainstream program, compared with 43 percent last year. While mainstreamed students gave various reasons for selecting Gallaudet, nearly all expressed the need for enhanced communication access.

Final enrollment data will be available from the Enrollment Management Office later this month.

Film, actresses up for Emmy awards

"Love is Never Silent," the Hallmark Hall of Fame production shown on NBC television last December, is nominated for Emmy awards in four categories.

Gallaudet graduate Phyllis Frelich, who played Janice Ryder, is nominated for best supporting actress in a mini-series or special. Mare Winningham, who played Janice's daughter, Margaret, is nominated for best actress.

The film also received nominations for best drama/comedy and for best writing in a limited series or special.

The Emmy awards will be shown Sept. 21 on NBC.

Defense expected to lead way in football home opener

When a record 88 Gallaudet football players arrived on campus for the start of football camp on Aug. 15, Coach Bob Westermann told them, "Our goal this year is to move to a higher level of performance and competition."

After three weeks of twice-daily practices plus scrimmages against Montgomery College and Georgetown University, the Bison will open their 11-game regular season at home this Saturday, Sept. 6, against the Clemson Club from South Carolina.

"The Clemson Club beat UNC-Wilmington last year by approximately the same margin we did," said Westermann. "They're tough, and they take their football seriously."

Top returning Gallaudet players include Todd Silvestri, Junius "Bo Bo" Taylor and Charles Hammack on defense; and Terrence Belton, Robert Wilkins and Pat Hutson on offense. Some top newcomers include sophomore tailback Steve McNeese, a transfer from Hofstra University in New York; freshman defensive back Lyle Monsen from Salt Lake City, Utah; freshman linebacker Tim Wright from Eastover, S.C.; and freshman quarterback James Segala, who threw for more than 6,000 yards during his high school career in South Deerfield, Mass.

Westermann last year promised his players that he would submit to a head shaving if the team won half of its 10 games, which it did.

This year there are no such deals. "Last year was something special," said Westermann. "This year we should be able to motivate from within."

Announcements

The First National Conference on the Visual and Performing Arts in the Education of Deaf Students will be held Oct. 16-18 in Phoenix, Ariz. Participants in the conference will include Debbie Sonnenstrahl, associate professor of art history and museum studies; and Paul Johnson, chair of the Fine Arts Program at MSSD.

Deafpride, Inc. will hold its third annual benefit Moonlight Dance Cruise down the Potomac River this Saturday, Sept. 6. The cruise will leave from Pier 4, 6th and Water Streets. Boarding begins at 7:45 p.m. Tickets are $25.

The campus community is invited to a retirement party on Friday, Sept. 5 for Polly Peikoff, administrative secretary in the Office of Alumni Relations and Advancement. The event will be held in "Ole Jim" from 3 to 5 p.m.

Among Ourselves

Howard Busby, director of the National Academy and assistant professor in the Department of Counseling, was the keynote speaker at the 18th Annual Banquet and Candlelight Program of the Youth Leadership Camp in Minnesota last month. Roger Claussen of the MSSD Residence Program was the camp's director.

Janet Pray, chair of the Department of Sociology and Social Work, and Mary Ann Kinsella-Meier and Mary Hughes, supervising rehabilitation specialists with the Department of Audiology, recently participated in workshops on "Effective Communication with the Hearing Impaired Elderly" sponsored by the D.C. Office on Aging. Dr. Pray spoke on "Psychosocial Aspects of Hearing Loss in Older People," Kinsella-Meier discussed "Assistive Listening Devices: Description and Uses," and Hughes addressed "Effective Communication Strategies."

'Adoption' program to assist freshmen

Research indicates that the freshman year is the crucial period of adjustment to the college environment, when students need to establish new social relations and make new kinds of decisions, according to a memo distributed by John Mihall, director of the Office of Student Development.

To assist new freshmen in making this adjustment, the Office of Student Development, a unit of Student Affairs, is piloting an "Adopt a Freshman Week" program Sept. 22 through 26.

Upperclassmen and "adopted" new freshmen will participate in week-long activities that include an exchange of room visits, an "Introductions Day" for meeting each other's friends, and dinner together.

For more information about the program, contact Mihall in Ely Center 150, or call x5157.

Valerie Janesick takes a rare break prior to the start of classes.

Janesick named professor and chair of Educational Foundations/Research

Gallaudet has named Valerie J. Janesick, PhD, associate professor and chairperson of the Department of Educational Foundations and Research. Dr. Janesick assumed her role in the School of Education and Human Services (SEHS) on Aug. 1.

Dr. Janesick's department provides services for faculty members in SEHS and trains graduate and undergraduate students in research methods and in the foundations of education: philosophy, sociology, anthropology and history. In addition to chairing the department, Dr. Janesick will teach two graduate level courses in social and multi-cultural foundations.

Trained as an anthropologist, Janesick brings to Gallaudet a wealth of experience in the field of ethnographics—the description and analysis of a given culture. Her goals include developing a new course in that field.

"I would like to propose a course in ethnographic research methods for our students, to balance what they learn about statistics and the quantitative methods in general," she said. "I'd like to teach the qualitative side of it, focus on the human element."

Dr. Janesick came to Gallaudet from the State University of New York at Albany, where she was an assistant professor in the Department of Program Development and Evaluation. She also served as program director of the Migrant Tutorial Outreach Program there, which has provided tutorial services to children of migrant farm workers since 1980.

She has received more than $400,000 in grant money for tutorial programs and has completed a book titled "Migrant Education: Trails, Trials and Troubles."

Dr. Janesick received her PhD in curriculum and instruction/qualitative research from Michigan State University. She earned a master of arts degree in rhetoric communication from Bowling Green State University, and a bachelor of science degree in drama/English education from Eastern Michigan University. Dr. Janesick has served as a consultant for school districts throughout the United States and Canada, and has published numerous professional papers.

Dr. Janesick, who recently completed the New Faculty Orientation program, will teach with the help of an interpreter for the first term. Pointing to her ever-present copy of a sign language instruction book, she said, "I know I'm learning because I've started to dream in sign."

For fast, effective results . . . know the procedure for Service Center requests

Do you know whom to call when you need custodial, maintenance, grounds or special events services?

That's right, Physical Plant Department (PPD) Service Center staff.

But there's more you should know. The fastest and most effective way to get results is to provide as many details about a problem as possible. Remember to be specific about location so the work order will be issued to the proper area.

How and when the work will be completed is decided by area supervisors.

Under College policy, the PPD has seven days to complete a non-emergency job. If the job requires more time, callers will receive written notice of approximate scheduling.

The same procedure applies for special events services. These crews provide set-ups for campus activities and small scale inter-building furniture moving. They do not move computers, copy machines or word processors. Building-to-building moving requires approval by the Support Services manager or the Campus Facilities coordinator.

Requests for routine or emergency services in dorms must be made to the Housing Office. After-hours, emergency calls should be made to Security and Safety, x5555, and non-emergency calls are accepted on the code-a-phone, x5196.

The Service Center is located on the third floor of the Central Utilities Building. Anyone is welcome to drop by between 7:30 a.m. and 4 p.m., or call x5181 (V) or x5196 (TDD).

9th Cued Speech Program held here

Among the 200 persons attending the annual Cued Speech Family Program here last month were 25 professionals and 35 families from throughout the United States and Canada.

Learning and practicing Cued Speech were 33 hearing impaired and 34 hearing children, ages 6 months to 18 years, plus more than 100 adults, including seven sets of grandparents.

Dr. Walter Beaupre of the University of Rhode Island donated his time to administer his Basic Cued Speech Proficiency Rating test to participants.

Special topics discussed included assistive devices, Cued Speech interpreting, Cued Speech and auditory training at home and at school, and mainstreaming the Cued Speech child/inservicing school systems.

The program, in its ninth year, was co-sponsored by the Department of Audiology and the Office of Extension and Summer Programs. Coordinating this year's program were Betsy Kipila and Barbara Williams.

Dictionary altered by attorney's letter

Q. What do Daniel Webster, American statesman, and Karen Peltz Strauss, staff attorney in the National Center for Law and the Deaf, have in common?

A. Both contributed definitions to "Webster's Ninth New Collegiate Dictionary."

Granted, Webster's contributions lead Strauss' by several thousand to one, but Strauss' one is significant.

In a recent letter to publishers Merriam-Webster Inc., Strauss noted that the phrase "manual alphabet" was defined as "an alphabet for deaf-mutes in which the letters are represented by finger positions."

"... this alphabet is used by individuals who are deaf, but are not mute, i.e., [they] do have some ability to vocalize," wrote Strauss.

The assumption that all deaf people are also mute is a thing of the past, Strauss said. "In fact, very few deaf people are actually 'mute' to the extent that the word is defined as someone who cannot speak."

Responding to Strauss' letter, Frederick C. Mish, editorial director of Merriam-Webster Inc., wrote, "(The term) has simply, I suspect, been carried over unthinkingly from edition to edition... It seems hardly less a relic than 'deaf and dumb.'"

The upshot, said Mish, is that an appropriate change will be made by the next edition.

MLA to provide interpreting services

Joseph Grigely, an assistant professor in Gallaudet's English Department, has been successful in obtaining sign language interpreting services on a regular basis for annual conventions of the Modern Language Association (MLA), one of the largest professional literary associations in the country.

Dr. Grigely, currently on academic leave and studying at Stanford University as an Andrew W. Mellon fellow, received a letter from Phyllis Franklin, executive director of the MLA, telling him of the MLA's decision to provide interpreters.

Franklin said that the executive

Volunteer Zisman: Izzy ever special

More than pizza was served at the recent National Information Center on Deafness (NICD) annual pizza party.

There was also a chocolate cake inscribed "Happy Anniversary" for Isadore (Izzy) Zisman, in recognition of his five years of NICD volunteer service.

"I like volunteer work," said Zisman. "Working here is special to me because the staff and other volunteers are so very nice and friendly."

"Izzy's dedication, faithfulness and great sense of humor have made him a favorite in the program," said Arlynn Joffe, NICD's senior information specialist. "Izzy is special to me, too, because he was among the first participants in the Volunteer Orientation Program that I helped plan five years ago as one of my first duties at NICD."

Zisman was honored in 1984 with the "Community Volunteer of the Year" award.

As an information aide for NICD, Zisman draws on his experience as writer for FRAT, the National Fraternal Society of the Deaf's publication, and as editor of the Washington Society of the Jewish Deaf's newsletter. He is also a past secretary of the D.C. Chapter of the Gallaudet College Alumni Association.

Got a good story? Want to share it?

The On the Green staff believes that a good faculty and staff newspaper can be made better through input, cooperation and feedback from readers. To improve the paper, and therefore improve campus communication, the following information and guidelines are offered regarding your newspaper.

Story ideas: Please contact editor Jim Stentzel or writers Nancy Moore or Mary Johnstone, Chapel Hall or x5100, regarding ideas for news and feature stories. If you can offer assistance in providing background information or arranging for photos, please discuss this with the editor. Each department is encouraged to designate a person responsible for getting news and ideas to On the Green.

Articles: All articles should be typed (double spaced). Please also provide the name and telephone extension of the author or a person to contact for more information.

Copy deadline: Friday, 10 days before the date of publication on Monday. When announcing upcoming events planned for a Monday, Tuesday or Wednesday, please provide the information in time for the previous week's paper.

Schedule: On the Green is published every Monday except Dec. 1, 22 and 29, 1986.

Circulation: More than 2,200 copies of OTG are distributed on campus each week, providing maximum exposure to the community and therefore minimizing the need for campus-wide memos and newsletters. If you do not regularly receive your Monday paper by Wednesday, please check with your department or inform Linda Barries, x5100.

Publisher: OTG is published by the Office of Alumni Relations and Advancement (AR/A). Please note that AR/A and the Office of Public Relations are separate units.

Content: Contributions to On the Green should be restricted to items of interest to the larger campus community (beyond your department). The editors reserve the right to select, edit, shorten, provide bylines for, lay out and/or hold for later publication any contribution, solicited or unsolicited.

"Personalities": This periodic column is devoted primarily to introducing new faculty and staff to the community. If you or anyone in your office is yet to be introduced, please contact OTG.

Thank you for your continued support and cooperation.

Football team takes on Clemson Club in '86 season opener this Saturday

The Bison's defensive unit should be especially strong this year. "The defense will keep us in games," said Westermann. "I'm a defensive coach by personality. I like that side of the ball."

The preseason roster included players from 30 states, the District, two Canadian provinces and Guam. One of Westermann's recruits—Charles Smith, a freshman from Las Vegas, Nev.—is called "the fastest deaf guy in the country" by the coach.

Smith won gold medals in the 100 and 200 meters, long jump and 400-meter relay at the 1985 World Games for the Deaf in Los Angeles. He tried out for the track team at the University of Houston but transferred to Gallaudet because of its academic resources for deaf persons.

Gallaudet softball team completes best season

Gallaudet recently captured third place in the 1986 U.S. Senate post-season softball tournament, finishing 16-4 overall for its best season since joining the league in 1982.

As the tournament's number-two seeded team, Gallaudet won 4 of 6 games in the tourney, defeating teams from the offices of Senators Phil Gramm and David Pryor, the Supreme Court and the Senate Stationary room.

Gallaudet's first loss, in the semi-finals, was to the tournament winning Immigration Department. Its second loss was to the Sen. Pryor team in the consolation round.

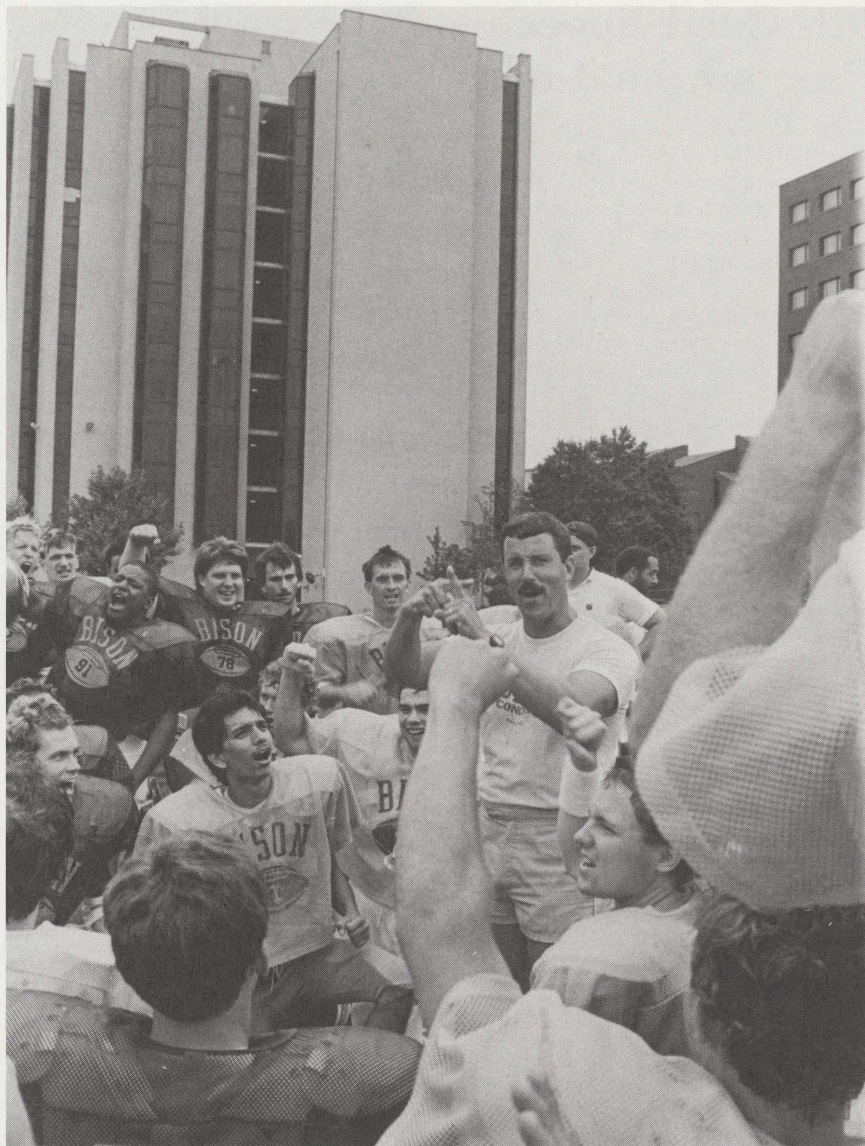

In addition to the College's third-place trophy, all Gally players will receive individual trophies.
